Telling Our Stories 2016 is the 250th year of United Methodism in the New York area. This is a great opportunity to celebrate our Methodist heritage, its diversity, and its great blessings and challenges. In this workshop we'll be introduced to luminaries and milestones from our collective story. Technology in Worship During the last fifty years, technology has dramatically changed the way that we communicate and reach out. People rarely write letters anymore. Instead, we text. Talks are now routinely enhanced with computer-generated visual aids, and anyone can reach instantaneously to hundreds of people in the middle of the night via social media. This workshop will review and explain in simple terms how to effectively incorporate technology into our church life, as well as how it can help us to communicate God's word to newer generations. Led by Jorge Varas, Saint Andrew's UMC, New Haven.

Godly Play Godly Play is a Montessori-based, imaginative approach to guiding children on their spiritual journey, using the discovery method of learning. We will experience Godly Play, hearing a story from Scripture told by heart and using tangible, visual materials. Then we will wonder about the story together. Before leaving we will consider: What was this like for me? How did this differ from other programs? Is Godly Play something I need to know more about, or have in my life? Information on how to find out more will be available. Led by Linda Clapp, Teacher Trainer, Godly Play Foundation.

Immigration Join T.J. Mills, managing attorney for the New York Annual Conference-Justice For Our Neighbors program (NYAC-JFON) and Steven Lee, its executive director, for an introduction to immigration law and a discussion of how church members can welcome immigrants into our communities
